Colonel Shryock, of Indiana, writes from Nashville to the Indianapolis Journal an interesting account of the destruction of a supply train in Tennessee. He was on his way to the front to attend his son-in-law, who had been wounded at Chickamauga. He left in company with a train of ammunition, under charge of Capt. Ruyerswra, of Indiana, and of his journey he says:

I travelled twelve miles on Wednesday last, and got very tired, so kept with the train all day. We had to wait for the road to be made, so we did not travel a great distance on Thursday. We travelled five miles on Friday; but this, was about all. Here a party of five negroes met us and told us that we had to wait for the road to be made, so we did not travel a great distance on Friday. We travelled five miles on Saturday, and so on.

On Saturday we had to wait for the road to be made, so we did not travel a great distance on Saturday. We travelled five miles on Sunday, and so on.
